The horses are the creation of Woodland Park resident Kat Bridenbaker, who offers them for sale but also provides rides to "anyone under 500 pounds and under 90 years of age." "Kids have a good time on them, but so do the adults," Ms. Bridenbaker said. ``We have a lot of grownups ride them and we've sold a lot to adults who don't even have children. They are fun for everyone."	They are covered in various types of fur and all have glass eyes and yarn manes. The horses can hold up to 500 pounds. Ms. Bridenbaker said she began making the horses after she got "burned out" on the upholstery business.	"I prayed for an idea that would help me to continue to be self-employed," she said. `Then one night, the Lord gave me a dream about these horses. He was very specific about how they would look." It wasn't long after that she began creating the horses all herself. To date, she's made 153 of the animals and all but six have been sold.	All the horses have names which depict their color or personality. For example, there is Cotton Candy, a white unicorn with pink highlights, or Chocolate Chip, who is white with black specks.

While Ms. Bridenbaker said she has brought the horses to the Fair the past six years to generate sales, she also wants to provide a good time for kids and adults	-fallke. That's why she decided to offer rides on the life-sized animals for $1.50 each. The ride includes a horse lollipop made fresh by Ms. Bridenbaker's daughter, Deanna LeBeau of Colorado Springs.	For $3.50, people can also get a Polaroid picture taken of themselves while riding the animal. The creatures themselves sell for $775 for the large horses and $375 for the smaller ones. There are also stick horses for sale at $19 each.		That's why she offers the rides for a small fee. "They kind of sell themselves," she said. The Rocking K Corral is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday through Sunday.	Previous Next Back to top
